

ABSTRACT

This invention relates to methods and apparatus for detecting the presence of analyte in a sample, in particular to luminescence-based methods for such detection.